

HOME

GAMES

REVIEWS

ARTICLES

VIDEOS

LIVE STREAMS

PLAY NOW

Discussions > The Pub at MMORPG.COM

Discussion / Dark Ages

Categories

Recent Discussions

Leaderboard

Spellbound

Member
Posts: 3
June 2004
in The Pub at MMORPG.COM

Dark Ages is a game listed in MMORG's Game list section and I dont think that the reviews described how horrible the customer service of this game is. In the user agreement in the fine print Nexon includes that they have the right to terminate your character and account at any time they see fit. This means that if someone comes to them and reports you as a hacker or for harrassing them they can cancel and delete your account just cause they dont want to look into it. They do not respond to E-mails and they guy Kevin who always answers the phone doesn't know anything that is going on and can never help you. But i do agree with the reviews when they said stay away from darkages. I'm now on the look out for a newer and better Online RPG so if anyone knows of one tell me

lyonman24

Member
Posts: 855
June 2004

ok maybe its me being tired and all but you talking about DAOC dark ages of camalot? cause the stuff you describing doesnt click with the game i played for 2 years i never had a problem there

Coldmeat

Member
Uncommon
Posts: 3,412
June 2004

Dark Ages

They panic, so... just hold them down
I could live like this
I'm closing in; hate all around
I could be like this
Hearing them; them in my head
How can they be so sweet... sweet?

PLAY GAMES NOW!

Wizard101

Where Winds Meet

League of Angels III

Game of Thrones: Winter is Coming

Black Desert Online

Anocris

Tibia

Enlisted

World of Tanks

War Thunder

MORE OFFERS

Spellbound

Member
Posts: 3
June 2004

No not Dark aGes of Camelot, Dark Ages by Nexon Inc.

Cillasi

Member
Uncommon
Posts: 335
June 2004

Dark Ages is a game by Nexon and predates Dark Age of Camelot. It's a nice game, but heavy role-play. Like the original poster said, if you do not abide by the "rules" you can get kicked from the game. Lots of facets of the game are player run and it's a relatively young player base. If you're not a heavy role-player, their game NexusTK would be more to your liking. It focuses more on hunting and folks don't get hung up over the role-play stuff.

As for customer service, it can be pretty lousy if you ever have to use it, or if you ever merit their attention, but over the years I've played both games, I think I only had to deal with them once and I got a satisfactory result.

BigPeeler

Member
Posts: 1,270
June 2004

hmmm...

thats really... odd...

anybody ever play that old MMORPG "Legends" (not LoM... just "Legends")

i think the site was... www.legends.time.net or something... made by some company called... "time net"?... i dunno... all i know is last time i checked it was dead...

but anyways... anybody remember that game... because if u do you'll understand what im getting at here...

[edit] HA... i found it on MPOGD.com...

<http://www.mpogd.com/games/game.asp?ID=922> ... anyways... anybody remember it?

no matter where u come from... no matter where u are now... no matter where ur going... its all about the EXP

`You did 1337 damage.`

Spellbound

Member
Posts: 3
June 2004

God alot of people are responding to my little old informative post. But anyway yes i do remember Legends by TimeNet, thats the whole reason i started playing Dark Ages is because Legends went bankrupt and incase anyone is not into the cooprte details of a game, Legends was created by Nexon Inc. the same people that created and run Dark Ages but Nexon made Legends as a starter game when the company was still young and they were easily bought out by the bigger TimNet who assumed the game would be a hit and it was. But TimeNET thought it would be wise to beta test Legends and wait for Nexon to make an update and buy that out too then charge for it. As they were wise to beta test it the game was continuously hacked and crashing because it was never updated and less and less people played and when TimeNET Tried to buy the newly released Dark ages Nexon refused to sell because they had seen the response to Legends and had added new things to make the game more fun and made it updateable so that they could fix any hacking problems or bugs. Since TimeNET could not make any money off of Legends and couldn't fix any of the bugs or hacking problems they went bankrupt and were forced to close Legends. Now most hard-core legends fans play dark ages because its so similar and a bit better. Dark Ages has Rangers just like Legends. As far as i know none of the Rangers off of legends are Rangers in Dark Ages. If you wish to contact a Former Ranger, AerinYokaze, whisper OwenQuinn on Dark Ages. Well its been nice being the ask a question i answer guy.

BigPeeler

Member
 Posts: 1,270
 June 2004

... ya?

... ^^ thanks for the history lesson (and i mean that in the NON-sarcastic way believe it or not)... i guess that would explain it eh...

... ya anyways... legends was an alright game back in the day.. i remember all that cheating/hacking u were talking about though... level 99's EVERYWHERE... i think right before the game closed down it would peak at like 80 or so people on... was pretty sad...

no matter where u come from... no matter where u are now... no matter where ur going... its all about the EXP

 You did 1337 damage.

Sign In or Register to comment.